OVERVIEW

The COVID-19 pandemic has disrupted every aspect of our lives. Global security is now constantly threatened by the continuous insurgencies from extremist groups and the geopolitical tensions between nations. Moreover, environmental sustainability and climate change are currently challenging the nations to act urgently. These societal maladies will fester until we direct our focus on the young, the future generation.

Addressing the various challenges facing today's youth requires a comprehensive, intergenerational, and cross-sectoral approach, with the participation of governments, corporates, youth, and all segments of society. Empowerment of youth would require a holistic approach along the terms of educational attainment, digital accessibility, poverty reduction, employability, environment protection and youth entrepreneurship.

The YESS Forum will showcase innovative models undertaken by non-profits, start-ups, businesses and other stakeholders in the areas of education, sustainable livelihoods, environment and women empowerment. The discussions from this forum will guide actors in the development sector to incorporate proven models and innovative ideas in their interventions aimed at marginalised youth.

1. Education for All

The paradigm of education sector has changed with focus on holistic and multi-disciplinary education for youth; equity and inclusion in higher education for bringing marginalised youth in the mainstream, and online education for youth for employability and career growth.

2. Skills for Sustainable Livelihoods

Interventions related to employment should focus on employability, equal opportunities, entrepreneurship and employment creation. Encouraging Indian youth to become entrepreneurs can turn job seekers into job providers thus helping in creating sustainable employment opportunities.

3. Climate Action

Climate change is here. As its impact intensifies over time, it is the children and young people of today who will face the worst effects. Youth of the world is advocating with the world governments to bring radical reforms to stop climate change. Young people are using their skills whether through education, technology, science or law for climate action.

4. Gender Justice

This track is dedicated to discussing the future of gender equality and women's empowerment and will focus on the gender dimensions of career opportunities, education and criminal justice responses to gender-based violence.
